Concerning socialism, Sir William Leng paraphrases Ebenezer Elitott:

"To this night's masquerado," quoth Dick,

Giobe-Democrat: Poor Fritz in the Grande Ducherse acted an epigram, says the said Respect to the said that radio of teaching in order to learn something. Sydney Smith once said that clergymen might be divided into three classes: Nimreds, ramreds and fashing rods. It was not a bad epigram; but thus been beaten by an American, who, with special reference to the Eric line, said that radioads are built upon three gauges. Frond gauge narrow gauge and mortange. The antithesis to an epigram is an cuphemum which heiss a disagretable fact in a cloud of words.

Here is a somewhat ill-natured epigram:

siss to starboard, and then both to port. The first time I noticed a young damsel kissed my partner good-bye as she started to dance with me. I was astonished, and said we were not going far, which made them laugh. I found that the girls in contiguous seats kissed good-bye before every dance, as if to say. You will elope this time, sure. When the time for supper came, I fell laito line and escorted a blooming Filipiana to the table. I asked a realdent American what I about help her to, and he said, emphatically; Ham and turkey; I gave her a full plat, which she soon despatched, and then she called for more. Everybody at ham and turkey. The gentlemen acted as waiters, and afterward sat down together. Spaniards are terrible eaters, and no wonder on this excasion, for they came to the ball at 8 o'clock, and danced until 5 a.m. We held ourselves in dancing trim by refreshments. moved along. There were little tots of Indian boys dressed like priests, with tiny own!s, who toddled along and looked very funny; then little files of monks with long dresses, who also toddled; then girls with vells walked hand in Land, and little girls with lithand in Land, and little girls with little vells carrying tapers. The houses all along the route were illuminated in a simple and effective way by red, blue and green tumblers half filled with oil and having floating tapers in them.
Later in the evening the music and dancing began in the largest part of the city. As we walked along the bright little streets, senorities stood in the light of the lanterns to be looked at, and laughed and filted and threw at us bits of cotton with flash powder, as they do at carnivals. It would nearily reach us and make us jomp, and then go out, greatly to the amusement of the girls.

FESTIVITIES OF HOLIDAY WEEK.

"Every evening during the holiday week some section of the city took its turn at dilumination, dancing and festivity, and thither went all the youth, beauty and pleasure-seekers of the town and suburbs. The most curious of the entertainments was a ball at the house of a rich Chinaman. There was a peculiar blending of burbarism and divilization in the furniture, table service and appointments. There were present a large number of Chinese Mestizo ladles, with more or less of the almond-shaped eye, but some of them rather pretty, and even fond of dancing the habanera and of looking with
